Mixed Race Life Stories
Critical Mixed Race Studies

Edited by Shirley Anne Tate, University of Alberta, Canada

This series adopts a critical, interdisciplinary perspective to the study of mixed race. It showcases ground-breaking research in this rapidly emerging field and publishes work from early career researchers as well as established scholars. The series publishes short books, monographs and edited collections on a range of topics in relation to mixed race studies and includes work from disciplines across the Humanities and Social Sciences including Sociology, History, Anthropology, Psychology, Philosophy, History, Literature, Postcolonial/Decolonial Studies and Cultural Studies.

Editorial Board: Suki Ali, LSE, UK; Ginetta Candelario, Smith College, USA; Michele Elam, Stanford University, USA; Jin Haritaworn, University of Toronto, Canada; Rebecca King O’Riain, Maynooth University, Ireland; Ann Phoenix, Institute of Education, University of London, UK; Rhoda Reddock, University of the West Indies, Trinidad & Tobago

Previously Published Volumes

Shirley Anne Tate, Decolonising Sambo: Transculturation, Fungibility and Black and People of Colour Futurity

Mengxi Pang, Family, Identity and Mixedness: Exploring ‘Mixed-Race’ Identities in Scotland

Forthcoming in This Series

Kavyta Kay, The Dougla Body: Orientations of Indianness and Blackness
Mixed Race Life Stories: The Multiracializing Gaze in Canada

BY

JILLIAN PARAGG

Independent Researcher, Canada
For my Black and brown kin. Keep living joyfully, despite it all.
This page intentionally left blank
Table of Contents

About the Author ix
Acknowledgements xi

Chapter 1 Introduction: Encountering the Multiracializing Gaze 1
Chapter 2 The Multicultural Era and Race Discourse in Canada 25
Chapter 3 Learning the Multiracializing Categorical Gaze 41
Chapter 4 Storied Identities: Navigating the Terms of Belonging 65
Chapter 5 The Lived Experience of the Multiracializing Gaze 93
Chapter 6 Conclusion: (Un)collective Possibilities 117

References 127
Index 137
About the Author

Jillian Paragg, PhD, is an independent qualitative researcher based in Treaty 4 Territory (Regina, Canada), who specializes in race, identity, immigration and social inequality in the Canadian context.
Acknowledgements

There are many people who have guided and supported me throughout this book writing journey. My deepest thanks to Sara Dorow for her unwavering support throughout the project. Her mentorship and guidance led me to honour the richness of the life story interviews that I gathered, and she continually pushed me to move to a deeper level of theorizing and analysis. Her reminders that research is practice are something that I will always carry with me.

I would also like to thank the series editor, Shirley Anne Tate, and the external reviewers for their support, encouragement and thoughtful feedback from the proposal stage to the final revisions. Their reflections and questions helped me to think closely about what choices I was making and helped to strengthen my writing.

A big thank you to my friends, some of whom were sounding boards for me throughout the research project, but especially while in the field. Chats with Kelly Struthers-Montford, Kelsi Barkway, Emily Snyder, Dan Trottier and Kelly Tran helped me to reflect more deeply about my methodological and analytical processes.

My family’s unwavering support and faith in me, including my parents, Bette-Lou and Ralph, and my sister Karla, also need to be acknowledged. Their love and support means the world to me.

Lastly, thank you to my research participants, who shared the stories of their lives with me. This book would not have been possible without their willingness to sit down and open up their lives to a stranger. I am honoured that they were willing to share their stories with me.