

Guest editorial

Amanda Davies

Welcome to this special edition of the journal. In November 2018, the International Policing and Security Conference, hosted by Charles Sturt University, was held in Sydney, Australia. A wide range of topics emanating from key issues facing policing, security and judiciary professionals were presented and discussed. This special edition contains papers developed from presentations at the conference and additional non-conference papers, all of which offer insight into research themes currently being progressed globally in the policing and security fields.

As policing and security agencies across the globe continue to build capacity and resilience to win the war on crime, sharing knowledge on topics ranging from ethical leadership for law enforcement agencies, challenges facing police educators and the use of machine learning in counter terrorism strategies to online fraud investigative practice and analyzing crime statistics and contributes to the collective knowledge and future strategy developments.

It has been a privilege to undertake the role of Guest Editor; thank you the team at Emerald.

I look forward to reading your contributions to the journal in the future.

Amanda Davies is based at the Department of Policing and Security, Rabdan Academy, Abu Dhabi, United Arab Emirates.