

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

We thank each of the authors of these chapters for their contributions. They have taken on the important and difficult task of finding innovative collaborations focused on sustainability-related issues and describing their formation with rigor and clarity. They have entered into collaboration with us to get this volume produced and our hope is that they did not have to sacrifice too many of their individual goals to make this partnership work. We also want to thank Lorelei Palacpac and the staff at the Center for Effective Organizations for their logistics and manuscript preparation support. Coordinating permissions, getting figures to make sense in black and white, revising manuscripts, orchestrating communications in six different time zones spanning 16 hours, and doing so with grace under pressure made our task easier.
